Integrien Announces Partnership Agreement with MphasiS

Global IT and BPO service provider will aid development as well as sell and implement Integrien's Integrity Management solution

Mumbai, May 3, 2006 – Integrien Corporation, the leader in integrity management software and solutions, today announced a unique partnership with MphasiS, a leading provider of IT and business process outsourcing services. Under terms of the agreement, MphasiS becomes one of Integrien's core development partners and will sell and implement Integrien's flagship integrity management solution, Integrien Alive, on a global scale.

The expertise of MphasiS is focused on the financial services, high technology, healthcare and telecom verticals, and spans across architecture, application development and integration, application management and business process outsourcing, including the operation of large-scale customer contact centers. MphasiS clients typically operate complex, highly distributed IT infrastructures. Identifying the source of problems in distributed IT infrastructures is an uncertain, time-consuming process because it is conducted without a unified view of all the components or help in analyzing their interdependencies.

Through this partnership, MphasiS is forming a "center of excellence" to apply Integrien Alive to solve this business problem. The two companies currently are working on several financial services client opportunities. In addition, MphasiS is leveraging Integrien Alive to enhance its own mission critical operations by introducing integrity management and predictive analytics excellence into its core solutions.

"Integrien has quickly established the viability and uniqueness of its integrity management solution, and it's clear the need for a solution like Alive is growing rapidly," said Jeroen Tas, Vice Chairman and co-founder of MphasiS. "This robust technology will be something our customers will continue to look for in future implementations and agreements, and will greatly enhance MphasiS's overall service offerings. We're pleased to be working with Integrien to help deliver value to a broad customer base."

"This is a very strategic alliance with a company possessing a sterling reputation and strong scope of influence," said Integrien CEO Al Eisaian. "By combining Integrien's cutting edge technology solutions with MphasiS's IT service expertise, we can deliver an integrity management solution to the financial industry and beyond. This partnership will further enhance Alive's ability to identify and correct the multitude of pain points IT departments are experiencing in today's complex distributed infrastructures."

Integrien's integrity management product, Integrien Alive, allows IT organizations to holistically manage complex, distributed IT infrastructure, equally across all functional stacks. Alive automatically discovers the entire IT infrastructure and associated components, integrates data gathering with a special focus on the interrelated elements that deliver business services, and uses advanced analytics to understand what is normal for the infrastructure at any given point in time.
