IT services firm Mphasis has named Dave Cassie as its new country head for Canada where he will work with the leadership team to increase growth.

Cassie is experienced in consulting, technology solutions, outsourcing, and transformation in multiple industries across North America. He has led major transformation programs for leading banks, insurance companies, investment managers and wealth managers in the US and Canada, said the company in a release. Beyond financial services, he has also worked in a range of industries including transportation, high tech, automotive and consumer products.

“The past few years has created a secular demand for technology transformation services. With his exceptional track record of helping customers with large-scale transformation programs, Dave will be an invaluable asset to Mphasis and our Canadian clients,” said Nitin Rakesh, chief executive officer at Mphasis.

“I am excited to see the investments Mphasis is making in Canada, including a new Delivery Center in Calgary, Quantum City in partnership with the University of Calgary, and investments in key accounts across the country. We stand out from the crowd with a foundation of innovation, technical expertise and delivery excellence combined with domain specialization,” said Cassie.

Before joining Mphasis, Cassie was Managing Director, Financial Services Advisory at PwC where he led the PwC Canada Asset and Wealth Management practice. He has worked with TD Bank in Toronto, Canada and Cherry Hill, USA, where he led transformation programmes.

He holds an MBA degree from Ivey Business School in London, Ontario, and a Computer Science degree from the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Bengaluru-headquartered IT solutions provider Mphasis Ltd on February 7 announced the appointment of Dave Cassie, the managing director, Financial Services Advisory at PwC, as the country head for Canada.

Cassie, who led PwC's Canada Asset and Wealth Management practice, would partner with the leadership team to drive growth in the Canadian market, Mphasis said in a statement

"The past few years has created a secular demand for technology transformation services. With his exceptional track record of helping customers with large-scale transformation programs, Dave will be an invaluable asset to Mphasis and our Canadian clients. We are thrilled that he has joined us to lead our expansion plans in Canada," Mphasis CEO Nitin Rakesh said.

Cassie said he was excited to see the investments Mphasis was making in Canada, including a new delivery centre in Calgary, Quantum City in partnership with the University of Calgary, and investments in key accounts across the country.

"We stand out from the crowd with a foundation of innovation, technical expertise and delivery excellence combined with domain specialization. I look forward to helping to bring the Mphasis value proposition to the Canadian market," said Cassie.

Cassie was also not new to Mphasis and in his previous roles he has partnered with the company for multiple large-scale customer programs, the company said.

"Having experienced Mphasis' High Tech, High Touch, High Trust value proposition, he sees great opportunity to increase Mphasis' presence in the country. Together with our investments in Ontario, Quebec and Alberta; marquee customers we are already engaged with in Financial Services, Insurance and Logistics; nearshore development center in Calgary, we have both the scale and the specialization needed to be successful in Canada," the IT firm said in a statement.

The Mphasis share was trading at Rs 3030.95 at 1 pm, down 0.63 percent from the previous close, at the BSE.

Mphasis (BSE: 526299; NSE: MPHASIS), an information technology (IT) solutions provider specializing in cloud and cognitive services, today announced the appointment of Dave Cassie as the new country head for Canada. Dave will partner with the leadership team to drive growth and expand Mphasis' footprint in the Canadian market.

Dave has a long history in consulting, technology solutions, outsourcing, and large transformation programs in multiple industries across North America. He has led major transformation programs for leading banks, insurance companies, investment managers, and wealth managers in the US and Canada. Beyond financial services, he has also worked in a range of industries including transportation, high tech, automotive, and consumer products.

Dave is also not new to Mphasis, in his previous roles Dave has partnered with Mphasis for multiple large-scale customer programs. Having experienced Mphasis' High Tech, High Touch, High Trust value proposition, he sees great opportunity to increase Mphasis' presence in the country. Together with our investments in Ontario, Quebec, and Alberta; marquee customers, we are already engaged within Financial Services, Insurance and Logistics; nearshore development center in Calgary, we have both the scale and the specialization needed to be successful in Canada.

"The past few years have created a secular demand for technology transformation services. With his exceptional track record of helping customers with large-scale transformation programs, Dave will be an invaluable asset to Mphasis and our Canadian clients. We are thrilled that he has joined us to lead our expansion plans in Canada." said Nitin Rakesh, CEO at Mphasis.

"I am excited to see the investments Mphasis is making in Canada, including a new Delivery Center in Calgary, Quantum City in partnership with the University of Calgary, and investments in key accounts across the country. We stand out from the crowd with a foundation of innovation, technical expertise and delivery excellence combined with domain specialization. I look forward to helping to bring the Mphasis value proposition to the Canadian market," said Dave Cassie, Country Head of Canada.

Prior to joining Mphasis, Dave was Managing Director, Financial Services Advisory at PwC where he led the PwC Canada Asset and Wealth Management practice.
