

Database Transformation for a Super-Major Oil and Gas Company

The Client

The client is a leading oil and gas company in the world. The amount and the types of data generated in the client's infrastructure are massive with significant cost reflecting on support, hardware, and software.

Problem/Need

The client's infrastructure relied on complex systems and outdated hardware and software – resulting in database fragmentation that was low on efficiency.

Solution

Mphasis assessed the client's IT landscape and laid down best practices to transform it. The complex mainframe estate was migrated to an efficient, simple to maintain data estate that minimized complexity and cost significantly.

Post migration, support cost was reduced by 40% and the hardware and software costs were reduced by 70%.
